The study of another language is an adventure, an exploration into the workings of minds both like and unlike our own. As human minds mold language, so language also molds human minds. A language is therefore not only a means by which we represent our thoughts; it is also a medium that presents the world to us in a certain way. When we learn a new language, we learn to see differently - we acquire a new perspective from which to view both ourselves and the world. In the literature of another language we encounter a culture revealed, extended and tested by its most critical and inventive thinkers, who use the language to explore their society’s limitations and possibilities. Because the study of language liberates us from bondage to a single cultural perspective and allows us to converse with members of another culture, it has from the times of the ancient Romans been considered central to a liberal education.

Students of Hispanic Studies seek to understand an intricate contemporary culture and explore the literature and traditions that give it life. The major in Hispanic Studies, accordingly, consists of a balanced program of language, literature, culture, and linguistics, and includes one semester in the colleges’ semester study abroad programs in Chile, Guatemala, and Spain.

A major in Hispanic Studies is often interdisciplinary in nature and prepares students for a wide variety of careers, both in the United States and around the world. Some students pursue careers in teaching or go on to graduate school in their field, others enter those professions in which applicants with a broad liberal background are sought. Beyond that, the linguistic competence associated with such a major is increasingly of interest to employers in a growing number of business, service, and government fields. As a result, students often choose to double major.

Attributes: Human Experience (HE), Thematic Encounter3 - Justice

HISP 355D Latin American Literature & Culture Through Theater (4 Credits)
This course will offer an introduction to contemporary literary discourses in Latin America, focusing specifically on short story and drama genres. Beginning with representative selections from central twentieth century literary movements, students will examine the evolution of a theater discourse that explores national identity, human rights discourses and the recovery of historical and mythical memories. The readings will be studied and discussed in Spanish and in their literary, cultural and political contexts. Supplementary readings –all in Spanish– will be suggested or provided when appropriate. Prerequisite: HISP 312, 313 or 316.
Prerequisites: HISP 312 or HISP 312Z or HISP 316 or HISP 313 or HISP Proficiency with a score of 1

HISP 355G Desire & Passion in Contemporary Spanish Literature (4 Credits)
The longing for the unattainable has motivated an unflagging pursuit to satiate an appetite or emotional need. These deeply stirring and, at times, unmovable ardors have been the subject of many of Spain’s greatest literary works and the focus of this course. We will examine the desires and passions that move characters and reflect the state of contemporary Spain. We will study selected works of poetry, theatre and narrative and focus on the nature of Spanish society and culture. Prerequisite: HISP 312, 313 or 316.
Prerequisites: HISP 312 or HISP 312Z or HISP 316 or HISP 313 or HISP Proficiency with a score of 1
Attributes: Human Experience (HE), Thematic Encounter3 - Truth

HISP 355H Across the Ocean: Contemporary Spanish and Latin American Culture (4 Credits)
This is an advanced course focusing on Contemporary Hispanic literature and culture at both sides of the Ocean. We will explore major historical events that took place in Spain and Latin America during the 20th and 21st centuries. Special attention will fall on the Avant Gard movements. In this course, we approach social, existential and ethical issues through a brief selection of literary texts, paintings and films. Authors such as Miguel de Unamuno, Antonio Machado, Juan Rufio, Rosa Montero and Ana Merino, together with artists such as Salvador Dalí, Frida Kahlo, Pablo Picasso and Diego Rivera will guide our learning and visions. Through analysis of the selected class-material, we intend to broaden knowledge on Contemporary Hispanic culture and at the same time strengthen our critical thinking. Prerequisite HISP 312, 313 or 316.
Prerequisites: HISP 312 or HISP 312Z or HISP 316 or HISP 313 or HISP Proficiency with a score of 1

HISP 355I Gender, Sexuality, Dictatorship, and Democracy in Spanish Literature (4 Credits)
This course will examine the recent history of Spain through novels. We will analyze shifting cultural norms such as the legalization of same-sex marriage in 2005, and current political challenges facing Spain’s current administration such as the 2017 Catalan independence vote. Modern Spain has moved from being a repressive dictatorship under the leadership of Francisco Franco (from 1939-1976) to a constitutional monarchy (with both a monarch and a prime minister) that is a member of the European Union. During the Franco regime, books were censored, open criticism of the government could be dangerous, homosexuality and divorce were illegal, and women were discouraged from working outside the home. The transition back to democratic rule brought with it a new openness to speak explicitly about issues facing modern Spain and a sudden shift towards more liberal social positions. This course will examine novels written both during and after the Franco dictatorship as a means to examine Spain's history and rapidly changing culture. Authors examined will include Mercè Rodoreda (La plaza del diamante), Rosa Montero (Amado amo), Imma Monsó (Todo un carácter) and Lucía Etxebarria (Beatriz y los cuerpos celestes). Prerequisite HISP 312, 313 or 316 and one upper division course in linguistics, literature or culture.
Prerequisites: HISP 312 or HISP 312Z or HISP 313 or HISP 316 or HISP Proficiency with a score of 1

HISP 355J Subversive Female Spirituality in Texts by Mexican Women Writers (4 Credits)
Through the reading of texts by Mexican women authors, this course highlights female non-fictional characters who subverted the way in which women expressed their spirituality within a Catholic-dominant society. It can fulfill either the Culture or the Literature requirement of the Hispanic Studies major. Prerequisites: HISP 312, 313 or 316 & one upper division course in linguistics, literature or culture.
Prerequisites: HISP 312 or HISP 312Z or HISP 313 or HISP 316 or HISP Proficiency with a score of 1
Attributes: Thematic Encounter3 - Justice
HISP 355K WEAVING POETIC CONNECTIONS (4 Credits)
Inspired by socially engaged poetry, this course will be conducted as a collaborative poetry writing workshop. We will read poems by established names that may include Ernesto Cardenal (Nicaragua), Juan Gelman (Argentina), Pablo Neruda (Chile), Julia Esquivel, Rosa Chávez, Humberto Ak’abal (Guatemala), and Ruperta Bautista (Mexico). We will also read and listen to poetic voices that emerge from unexpected places and name what has been silenced. By writing our own poems in Spanish, we will explore poetry as a practice for claiming the voice. The course will be divided between study of published Latin American poems and the development of our own poetic writing practices. We will read, write and critique poems as a means of articulating our connections to the world we inhabit. Poets and non-poets, shy people and extroverts are all invited to become active participants in the making of a Spanish language collaborative poetry workshop. Prerequisite: HISP 312 or 316 and one additional upper division HISP course.
Prerequisites: HISP 312 or HISP 312Z or HISP 316 or HISP Proficiency with a score of 1

HISP 356AA Spanish National Tradition, Modernity and Cultural Identity Abroad (4 Credits)
This course provides an interdisciplinary approach to Spanish Culture. Beginning with a historical overview of Spain and its mythic foundation it will examine the nature and sociopolitical aspects of Spanish culture. It will also focus on the ways individuals, families and communities express themselves, their beliefs and their values within their own culture. Attention will be given to political and cultural factors underlying ethnic and nationalist sentiments within the framework of the European Union. The course explores the roots of Spain’s national identity in its three original cultures, Jewish, Muslim, and Christian as well as the European intellectual and cultural background. This class meets the culture requirement for the Hispanic Studies major. Prereq: HISP 312, 313 or 316 and one upper division course.

HISP 356AB Latin America in Globalization (4 Credits)
This course will examine Globalization as it is perceived and experienced from the point of view of Latin America. The course will focus primarily on representations of lived experience. Questions related to how a diverse range of people from/in Latin America imagine and carve out their own place in a globalized world will be considered through the study of essay, narrative and film. The course will make use of interdisciplinary approaches and will be organized around thematic units (such as migrations, environment, narcotráfico, maquiladoras, tourism, and networks of solidarity). This course fulfills the culture requirement for the Major in Hispanic Studies. This course may be used toward completion of the LLAS Minor. Prerequisites: 312, 313 or 316 and one upper-division course in linguistics, literature or culture.
Prerequisites: HISP 312 or HISP 312Z or HISP 316 or HISP 313 or HISP Proficiency with a score of 1

HISP 356AC Topics in Hispanic Cinema (4 Credits)
This course features a selection of films from both Spain and Latin America together with a selection of literary texts that portray significant social changes in the Hispanic world. The material included comes from film directors and authors predominantly from Spain, Mexico, Colombia and Argentina. The course requires research on historical events on both sides of the Atlantic. Students are also expected to refine their ability for literary and filmic analysis. Debates will evolve around character analysis, narrative techniques, and the aesthetic component of symbols and images. This course ultimately targets moral analysis of social changes and individual behavior. Topics such as family and gender, war and revolution, oppression, drugs, immigration and other phenomena in modern society will be common discussion themes. Prerequisites: 312, 313 or 316 and one upper-division course in linguistics, literature or culture.
Prerequisites: HISP 312 or HISP 312Z or HISP 316 or HISP 313 or HISP Proficiency with a score of 1

HISP 356L Global Voices (4 Credits)
This course will explore pressing health and environmental challenges in the Spanish-speaking world through a social justice-oriented global health lens. Case studies and representations of lived experience will center the voices of people and communities most impacted by health disparities. Given that social determinants of health can involve economics, education, history, cultural context and language, the course will have an interdisciplinary approach and will be enriched by student perspectives from a range academic interest areas. There will be a project-based learning component where small groups will contribute to an exploration of a particular social issue or evaluation of a global health intervention. Pre-requisite: HISP 312/316 or demonstrated language proficiency/instructor approval.
Prerequisites: HISP 312 or HISP 312Z or HISP Proficiency with a score of 1
Attributes: Human Experience (HE)
HISP 357 Chiapas Embedded SA (4 Credits)
This course combines classroom learning at CSB/SJU during CD mod and ends with an experiential component abroad. With portions both at home on campus and abroad in Chiapas, Mexico, at the heat of this "embedded" course are the language and intercultural learning opportunities afforded by an immersion experience in Chiapas, in the Mexican Southeast. Through small-group intensive instruction, 1-1 tutoring, a homestay experience and on-site engagement, students will expand their language proficiency and global perspectives. The course will begin with an on-campus seminar organized around the practice of accompaniment (walking with) as embodied by Bishop JAtik Samuel Ruiz. We will study some of the ways that the indigenous communities of Chiapas have struggled for rights and justice while exercising autonomy in the most important areas of their social lives (food production, education, health and good governance). We will explore a poetic mayatsotsil worldview and consider its relationship to contemporary social problems. Once onsite, in Chiapas, students will apply that on-campus learning as context for deeper engagement in language class, field trips to related sites and individual and group reflection.
